so far as the large importing houses are concerned, but after all, the time has come when the local business is worthy some consideration, and it is not the pleasantest prospect to see a legitimate branch of trade taken out of foreign hands, by a system of combination and protection in which foreigners can have no part. We cannot dony the Chinesotheright to make such arrangements unless there is a treaty stipulation to the contrary, and even when there are such stipulations, experience shows we cannot prevent the natives from establishing monopolies, such as exist to a great extent both in the regular trade in Exports and Imports. Possibly, should it be found that our coasting trade is placed at a great disadvantage, the matter may be the subject of negotiation; and if stipulations can be made in the revised treaty-whenever a revision may take place-which will place foreign and native steamers upon something like the same footing, it would be a fair and legitimate arrangement to arrive at. As has been observed before, it is no doubt probable that the competition which the new Chinese Company will bring about will not be so rapid as might at first be feared, because many Chinese are already largely interested in existing foreign companies; but that before long the Chinese steamers wil form a strong opposition is certain, and it is not by any means improbable that they may ultimately succeed in getting nearly the

A fire broke out on Saturday last at 9.3 a.m. in a store-room on the ground floor of No. 77, Graham-street, compied by Parsees. In a few minutes the place was enveloped in smoke, so that for some time it could not be ascertained in what part of the house the fire was. The Parsee community set to work with a will; and completely dranched the place with buckets of water, and the windows being opened and letting out the smoke, it was soon discovered that the fire was in a nut shell, causing more smoke than flame. A box of waste paper and old books was found smooldering, and it is supposed a cigar end thrown in was the cause the conflagration. The police were soon on the the Rev. But after this has been said I cannot say that we ought to be antisfied; and as you have given prominence to what Mr. Sturge properly calls a "manifesto" of the West India Committee, which I regret to say envelopes the system in far too rosy an atmos-* phere, I ask you, since the coolies have no ad vocate, to permit one who is not a partisan, and has already been accredited by you with firmness and andour in the treatment of the

Mr. Ohlson's letter reproduces the worn-out fact which hand others have given us ad nauseam. Dr. Underhill has done duty I know not how often. Canon Kingsley observed the aystem in the best coolis-worked colony in the world, under the auspices of his friend Arth Gordon, whose ability and decison enabled him to force upon the plunters such legislation the planters of British Guiana are now opposing tooth and nail. The gentlemen who make such plausible professions of anxiety for the coolies' interests are endeavouring to thwart the Oplonial Office in its effects to put the coolie on a fair footing with his master-a posttion which I assert, and the report proves, he does not occupy. I challenge Mr. Ohlson and the whole West India Committee to disprove this assertion. When Mr. Oblson declares that the report "sufficiently indicates the system" now existent, I should like to know the meaning of this peremptory despatch from Downing-street, (September 13th, 1872), to Governor

whole subject, to permit me to say a few words

"The course taken by you respecting the Immigration Bill is entirely in accordance with the wishes and intentions of Her Majesty's Government. The elective members of the Ourt of Policy are under a serious misapprehension if they billeve that Her Majesty's Govern ment could consent to relizquish the leading provisions of the Bill. You should distinctly explain to the Court of Policy that Her. Majesty's Government regards this legislation us indispensable, in consequence of the report of the Coolie Commissioners; and that when they 'strongly recommended the Draft Ordinance to the early and favourable consideration of the Court of Policy, they did so in the confident expectation that the Court would understand that it was necessary that no time should be lost in passing it, and that they would cheerfully co-operate in measures which are so essential to the welfare of so large a part of the population of the colony. The Cour must remember that the coolies are place under contraits of a very peculiar nature, which they forego during a term years their liberty to dispose freely their own labour; and that Her Majesty's Government, however desirous they may be to secure to the colony adequate aupplies of labour, are bound to insist upon such conditions as they may deen necessary for the protection of the immigrante. It is my duty to state that if undue delays are interposed in the way of the legislation new proposed, or if the decisions arrived at by Her Majesty's Government after full consideration of the Commissioners' report are rejected, it will be impossible to permit the continuance of coolie emigration to British

In this grave determination the Colonisi Office is warranted by the facts, and ought to be supported by the public opinion of England. I have thought and said that, within proper restriction, with improved regulations, and under careful supervision, the immigration of coolies may be made fruitful of good. What is it that makes me heritate or doubt? It is the temper of the planters themselves; their sensitiveness, their irritability at criticism, and their opposition to reforms. I lose confidence in a man who asserts boldly that no abuses exist where I have seen them with my own eyes sud heard of them with my own cars. I cannot but be suspicious of any human system which arrogates perfection or resents criticism. The way in which the planters of British Guiana receive Lord Kimberley's warning is to hold a meeting to consider his," very arbitrary despatch !

I have before me the prospectus, from which I give the following extracts: "Putting aside as being of too gigantic and expensive a nature all idea of a canal communication being formed either across the Isthmus of Tehuantepeo, the Isthmus of Panama, the Isthmus of Capica has been selected as the most favourable place in many respects as the juncture of the two seas. The entrance to the Atlantic side will be (from the Gulf of Darien) by the great river Atrato. This river mus inland almost due south for fifty-two miles to its confluence with the river Napipi, which branches off to the westward for thirty-five miles. Here it is proposed to cut a canal, the length of which will only require to be about five miles, to the river Tupica, which rans westerly for thirteen miles to the port of Pupica on the Pacific side. The total distance will be 105 miles, as follows: River Atrato, 52 miles; river Napipi, 35 miles; canal, 5, miles; river Cupica, 13 miles. Total, 105 miles." It almost appears as if nature had intended the course pointed out to be the great highway from the Atlantic to the Pacific Ocean. The track being so plainly pointed out, little has

cutting through a distance of not more than five wiles so as to join the rivers

Napipi and Cupica. At this very spot the

WITH THE PUNTI AND MANDARIN PRONUNCIATION. Anglo-Chinese Dictionary, published at the Daily Press Office, Hongkong.

MOR comprehensiveness and practical service this Work stands unrivalled. All the new words which the Chinese have of late years been compelled to coin to express the numerous objects in machinery, photography, telegraphy, and in science generally, which the rapid advance of foreign relations has imposed upon them, are bere given in extense. Each and every word is fully illustrated and explained, forming exercises for students of a most instructive nature, Both the Court and Punti pronunciations are given, the accents being carefully marked on the best principle hitherto attained. The typosay that the American papers assure us that | and is now open for families and gentle | make the Chinese and English type correspond in the size of body, thereby effecting a vast economy of space, achieving a clearness not previously attained, and dispensing with those vast margins and vacant spaces which have heretofore characterized Chinese publications. To illustrate the vast scope of the work, the Manager. following facts are submitted for consideration Chalmers' Vocabularly contains about 16,000 Chinese characters, and Medhurst's English and Obinese Dictionary about 100,000, whilst this work contains more than 50,000 English words, and upwards of 600,000 Chinese characters. Again, despite all the grammars and other elementary works as yet published, the student of this difficult language absolutely requires examples to display the various appli-cations and equivalents of different words which have one general meaning. Of these examples SHIP, AND STEAMBOAT this work contains more than five times as many as any other Dictionary hitherto pub For practical purposes the arrangement of the work is so complete, that a reference to its pages enables a person who understands English to communicate effectively with natives who understand nothing but Chinese. In this respect the work will be found indispensable to all Europeans residing in China, and to the natives themselves it explains subjects fully with which very few indeed of them are perfectly acquainted. To parties resident in England and interested in Ohins it cannot but be invaluable occasionally. It comprises upwards of two thousand large

TIRED MOTHERS. little elbow leans upon your knee, Your tired knee, that has so much to bear; A child's dear eyes are looking lovingly From underneath a thatch of tangled hair. Perhaps you do not heed the velvet touch Of warm, moist fingers, folding yours so tight; You do not prize this blessing overmuch, You almost are too tired to pray to night: But it is blessedness! A year ago I did not see it as I do to-day-We are so dull and thankless; and too slow To catch the sunshine till it slips away.

And now it seems surpassing strange to me, That, while I were the badge of motherhood, I did not kiss more oft, and tenderly, That little child that brought me only good. And if, some night when you sit down to rest, You miss this elbow from your tired knee, If from your own the dimpled hands had slipped And ne'er would nestle in your palm again; If the white feet into their grave had trippled I could not blame you for your heart-ache then l I wonder so that mothers ever fret At little children clinging to their gown ; Or that the foot-prints, when the days are wet, Are ever black enough to make them frown. If I could find a little muddy boot, Or cap, or jacket on my chamber floor; If I could kies a rosy, restless foot, And hear its patter in my home once more; If I could mend a broken cart to-day, To-morrow make a kite, to reach the sky-There is no woman in God'e world could say .

She was more blissfully content than I. But ah! the dainty pillow next my own Is never rumpled by a abining head;
My singing birdling from its nest is flown; The little boy I used to kiss is dead!

GEORGE THE SECOND AS A WIT. George the Second was not a humourist but he would have made a first-rate actor of "genteel comedy" had not fate cast him for another line of characters in the drama life. Shortly after his accession he commanded a play at the theatre in Lincoln's Inn Fields. The house was full, but as the king kept it waiting, the murmura of their displeasure fell upon his ear as he entered his box, three-quarters of an hour behind time. As he caught the unwelcome sounds he turned to Mr. Rich, the manager, who waited on him, as if he might gather from that official some explanation of the phenomenen. The greatest of the inteffectual harlequins of England honestly told the king that his Majesty was late, and that the audience did not seem to like it. THE WOLDS OF LANCASHIRE. Three ridges run from the north of the county to Horncastle, where they may be said, speaking roughly, to converge and die away. These are part of the Pennine Range, the backbone of England, and after stretching through Yorkshire, dip under the Humber, to reappear on the opposite side, in their familiar chalk and green sand, for a strip of some forty-eight miles in length. A breadth of fourteen miles covers these three ridges with intervening flais of arable land and low grassy bottoms, through which occasionally runs a rivulet. Fine views over a vast extent and of campaign country may be obtained from Can the summits of these wolds, which are about three five hundred feet high, terminated on the For one hand by Lincoln Cathedral; by Yorkshire, the Spurn Light, and the German Ocean, on the other side. From "Autumnal Trout- Par fishing in the Lincolnshire Wolds," in the "Cornhill Magazine" for November.
